Bravery Comes in All Sizes

When Blueberry hatches late and finds herself alone, she forms an unlikely friendship with Marmalade, a cautious chick with a big heart. Together, they navigate their Caribbean island home, learning how to find food, avoid danger, and survive in a world shaped by both animals and humans. As their bond deepens, the two face bullies, narrow escapes, and moments that call for unexpected courage. Their choices ripple outward, influencing not just their own lives but the entire flock. Written for readers ages 8–12, this middle-grade animal adventure blends excitement, humor, and emotional depth with a thoughtful exploration of empathy and freedom.

If readers like The One and Only Ivan by Katherine Applegate, Pax by Sara Pennypacker, The Wild Robot by Peter Brown, or A Wolf Called Wander by Rosanne Parry, then they'll love The Great Adventures of Blueberry and Marmalade.

Tracey Winter Glover is an activist, author, speaker, and filmmaker with a passion for animals, nature, and vegan living. She is the founder of the nonprofit animal rights group ARC and the director of Sweet Peeps Microsanctuary, a small sanctuary devoted to chickens rescued from animal agriculture. In her work, she tackles critical issues relating to animal welfare and the ways in which human beings relate to and impact the natural world.
