THE PAST WEARS A VEIL. IT WON'T STAY HIDDEN.

A late-summer boat trip. A secluded cove. Something is waiting beneath the surface.

When Del Corriveau and her friends explore a quiet stretch of coastline just east of Pyke Island, they uncover traces of a troubled past—an abandoned campground and questions never fully resolved.

What they find beneath the waterline draws them into a mystery that refuses to stay buried.

Set along the rugged coast of Downeast Maine, Black Veil, White Rose delivers a character-driven mystery where each discovery reveals how deeply the past still holds. Book 3 in the Pyke Island Mystery series.

“An engrossing mystery that delves deeply into Maine’s close-knit communities, revealing secrets and sins that have the power to haunt for generations.”

—Gillian French, author of the Shaw Connolly series

“This book has more twists and turns than the jagged Maine coastline and more flavor than a New England clam chowder.”

—Matt Cost, author of Mainely Mysteries and Modern-Day Chronicles of Max Creed

Moe Moeller is the author (as Moe Claire) of the Pyke Island Mysteries set in Downeast Maine, in addition to short stories, poetry, and community theater plays. When not writing, she hikes, gardens, sails, enjoys summer and winter in Maine, and volunteers for several local non-profits.
